SYNOPSIS ◆ ACT I

Sad and alone, Cinderella is forced to do all the housework while her Stepsisters tease her. Cinderella's Fairy Godmother quietly appears disguised as a beggar woman. The Ugly Stepsisters ignore her but Cinderella offers the woman kindness, food and some warm slippers for her feet. She is not aware of her true identity.

An emissary arrives with an invitation to attend the Prince's Ball that evening. The Stepmother and Stepsisters flirt with the emissary and tease Cinderella that she is not invited. Everyone leaves to prepare for the ball and Cinderella is left alone, feeling sad. The mystery beggar woman reappears and reveals herself as the Fairy Godmother and the magic begins...

The Fairy Godmother transforms the kitchen into a magical forest where the fairies of the Four Seasons dance for Cinderella and mice appear with a beautiful gown. The mice transform into horses and by magic a Pumpkin Carriage appears to transport her to the Ball. The Fairy Godmother warns Cinderella that she must leave the ball by midnight or her dress will turn to rags.

As she enters The Ballroom the Prince is enchanted by her beauty. The Stepmother and Stepsisters try to get the Prince's attention but he has only eyes for Cinderella. They dance until suddenly the clock strikes midnight. She rushes from the court, losing one of her slippers in her haste. The Prince vows to search the land to find this beautiful young woman.

◆ ACT 2

Travelling from country to country, the Prince searches for the girl he fell in love with. Sadly the slipper does not fit any of the beautiful girls he meets along the way; however the Fairy Godmother guides him towards Cinderella's house. Cinderella wakes up beside the fireplace and realizes that her presence at the Ball was not a dream and that she has fallen in love with the Prince. She quickly hides her remaining slipper in her dusting cloth.

The Prince is welcomed eagerly by the family and he asks them to try on the slipper. Desperately the sisters try to force their feet into the shoe, but to no avail. While they fight and squabble, Cinderella drops her matching slipper and when the Prince tries the slipper on her foot, he realizes this is the girl he loves. The Fairy Godmother blesses them both and they celebrate with a lavish wedding.
